CHAPLAIN’S CORNER
When it all gets too hard. It’s important to know that everyone struggles to be a good parent. No matter how perfect things appear from the outside, we are all challenged daily (sometimes more than that) by the pressures of raising a family.

But when the demands of the situation outstrip your emotional resources as a parent - what then? A smart mum or dad knows when it’s time to get some help. The normal ups and downs are one thing, but if you feel as though you haven’t got the strength or skills to deal with the parenting issue you’re facing, then it’s time to up skill. Books, coaching, counselling, and the support and advice of trusted loved ones can all help you find a way forward when it gets too hard.

“The test of a true champion is not someone who wins all the time but someone who has been knocked down but gets back up and wins”
